MINE Editor
developed by Ubium Oy

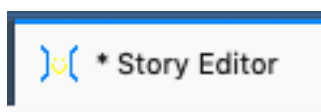

Save

The stories written in MINE are continuously saved in the cloud. That means that normally there is not need for any particular action from the user's side to save the story.

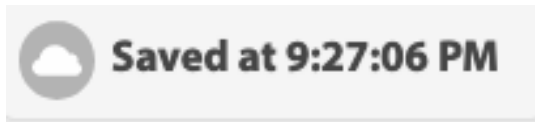

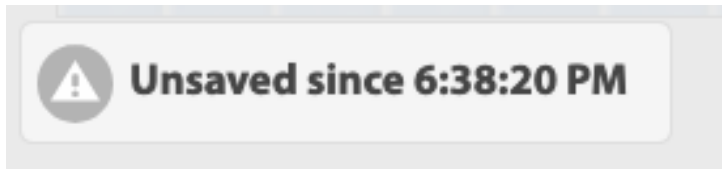

If the platform does not detect that the user is actively using the editor it automatically logs out. However, this might not be evident for the user.

On the bottom left side of the browser , where the MINE editor is open, you might see one of these two messages.

The first image is matched with a star “*” shown in the tab of the browser.

The time stamp should update and switch between the two states as you edit content and it is saved in the cloud after few seconds.

If the editor says that you should log in again, then we advice you to:

1. Open a new tab and login to MINE, without closing the current MINE editor.
2. In the new tab, after login, you don't actually have to do anything more. After a successful login in the new tab the original tab should resume proper operation.
